The employer undertakes to: register the worker with the mandatory health insurance fund before the first working day and pay the contributions on time; provide a pre-placement medical examination and periodic examinations at the employer's cost where the job so requires; keep travel medical insurance valid until mandatory insurance is effective; make first aid available at the workplace and provide safety training in a language the worker understands within the first week; and bear the cost of medical treatment for any injury at work, including transport and, where necessary, repatriation of the body.

Infectious disease and vaccination. Where the position requires it, the employer arranges the prescribed vaccinations and covers their cost. The worker is not required to pay for any medical examination required by the employer or by law.

6. REPATRIATION · REPATRIACIJA

COST OF RETURN TRAVEL (EUR, PER WORKER)	MODE (AIR TICKET / BUS / CASH AMOUNT)	ADVANCE PAID AT HIRING (EUR)

The employer undertakes to bear the cost of the worker's return journey to the country of origin in the following cases:

1. the permit or visa is refused, annulled or revoked after the worker's arrival, for a reason not attributable to the worker;
2. the employment ends within the first six months for a reason attributable to the employer, including redundancy, closure or reduction of work;
3. the worker is unfit for work due to an injury sustained at work;
4. the worker's health condition requires return, as certified by a Serbian physician;
5. the worker is a victim of trafficking or of abuse in the workplace and the employer has been so notified by the competent authority.

Where repatriation is due, the employer pays the cost within 15 days of the written request and, on the worker's request, arranges the ticket directly rather than paying cash. This obligation does not depend on the worker signing any waiver, and the employer may not set it off against unpaid wages. If the worker does not start work for a reason attributable to the employer, the same obligation applies from the first day.

7. NO FEES AND NO RETENTION OF DOCUMENTS

Neither the employer nor any agency or intermediary acting for it has charged, and will not charge, the worker any fee for recruitment, mediation, the permit, the visa, travel to Serbia or the accommodation. The employer will not retain the worker's passport, identity documents or bank card, will not require a deposit or a promissory note, and will not prohibit the worker from changing employer or leaving the accommodation. Any such clause is void.
